VOL. XXIII. MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE, MIDDLEBURY, VT., MARCH 2, 1927 No. 19

GLEE CLUB VICTORIOUS AT BOSTON

BASEBALL NINE STARTS PRACTICE NEXT TUESDAY

Most of Last Year's Team Will Report, Frosh Prospects Good.

Middlebury's baseball nine will start practice March 8. About forty men are expected to report. The batteries will begin work on next Tuesday; the infield and outfield will not have to report until about March 20.

Of the pitchers and catchers, there are six veterans back this season. Willis and Osborne, who caught last year, will be on the job again this spring. Pitchers that are back are: Simmons, Hingston, Bossert and Whittemore. There are nine Freshmen recruits for this department, from whom much is expected. Whittemore, who has been absent for several seasons due to ineligibility, will strengthen the team considerably.

Capt. E. Hasseltine will be back at first base. Kelly, Sorenson, Collins, Palmer, and Anderson will perform at their former positions in the infield.

Marchukaitus and W. Hasseltine are the only outfielders remaining from last year's nine.

With the many letter men back and the number of Freshmen reporting, Coach Klevenow expects to develop a good nine this season. The coach advises that more men come out. Although they may not be sure of a berth this season, it will count much towards securing a position next year. The team is sorely in need of reinforcements on the pitching and catching staff, and there are places open in the outfield.

Middlebury's first home game will be May 3, at Porter Field. This year's schedule has fourteen games, with three dates pending. Arrangements are also being made for a home game with Waseda University of Japan. The games formerly scheduled with Williams, Amherst and Wesleyan were forced to be cancelled because of a change in date of Easter vacation.

Griffin Saunders Announcement.

Carlus Howard Griffin, instructor of Economics and Political Science and Miss Katherine Martica Saunders of Middlebury will be married March 26 at the Cambridge Society of the New Jerusalem Church, Cambridge, Mass. Miss Saunders' pastor, Rev. W. L. Worcester will perform the ceremony.

Tryouts for the team which will debate with U. V. M., March 18, will be held in Old Chapel next Monday at 3:30 p. m. Allied war debts will be the subject. S. W. Pattee, '29, has been chosen as one member of the team, inasmuch as he has participated in the other debates this year, but the other places are still open, and the team chosen Monday will probably make the outside trips.

HOCKEY TEAM TO GET MAJOR "M"

This year's Hockey team will be awarded the major "M" as a result of action taken at the Undergraduate meeting last evening in Old Chapel.

Among the other measures passed were recommendations to have separate managers for cross country and track. From men left after the election of track managers, the assistant cross country manager will be chosen. After the election of football managers from the remaining candidates will be chosen a Freshman manager, who will be awarded an "M. A. A."

A method for chosing cheer leaders was also adopted. Assistant cheerleaders will be chosen by a committee composed of two faculty members, the Atheltic Council and the head cheer-leader, from the two lower classes from candidates for whom tryouts will be held April 7.

LEAGUE GAMES DRAW TO CLOSE

Fast Preliminaries Feature Week's Schedule of Games.

Last week saw many fast and closely-fought games in the interfraternity basketball series. The first of these was the preliminary to the St. Stephen's game when Kappa Delta Rho nosed out the Neutrals 23-19. The winners piled up a comfortable lead in the first quarter which the Neutrals were not able to overcome. The score at half time was 13-4 and in the second half the losers out-scored K. D. R. Hoffman and Valois starred.

On the following days, Wednesday, the Neutrals hit their stride in swamping the Delta Sigs 57-4. Cort, Valois, March and Williams dropped them in steadily for the winners. Pratt scored the only goal for the Delta Sigmas.

Friday again saw the K. D. R.'s and Delta Sigma in action last week. The latter was again overwhelmed 54-10.

Alpha Sigma Phi continued their winning ways on Saturday in defeating Delta Upsilon 32-11. MacDonald and Casey starred for the Alpha Sigs while Harris went well for the D. U.'s.

The preliminary to the Springfield game was a furious battle between the Neutrals and Dekes, the latter winning out 22-15 in a game which was much closer than the score would indicate. Scoring honors were evenly divided among the Deke players while Cort and Valois went the best for the losers.

VERMONT TAKES STATE SERIES IN BASKETBALL

Game Is Close Throughout. Palmer Starring for Blue.

By PAUL WOLFSKEHL

For one brief second during the basketball game with Vermont Monday evening the state title hovered on the edge of indecision. It was another Vermont night however and several Green and Gold rooters saw their team turn Middlebury back 27-19. The Blue team gave everything they had to beat Vermont and tie the state series but it was not to be again this year.

It was the sixth straight title that the Green and Gold has won in as many years. Vermont has had unusually strong teams for the past years and has beaten the Blue with more or less ease but Monday night's story was a bit different. The game was far from an easy victory and the final score made it seem easier than it really was.

The game was almost a duplicate of the first one played at Middlebury this year. It opened with a bit of fast playing and after the Vermont forwards had taken a few shots at the basket Price, star guard of the home team sunk two long shots in quick succession. Palmer followed this with a free throw and Saldutti made a basket bringing the score to 4-3. Vermont immediately staged a fast drive and while Franzoni added one basket for the Blue, Prentice and Price brought the Green and Gold's total up to a seven point lead over the visitors. Before the half ended baskets by Franzoni and Sorenson put Middlebury within scoring distance and the half ended 14-10.

Middlebury came out to start the second half with a wild desire to tie the score and hardly had the whistle blown when Palmer took the ball from center, advanced it down and caged a pretty one-hand shot, bringing the Blue within two points. Post then got a short shot, Prentice made a free try and Price sank a shot from the side giving Vermont a commanding lead. It looked for a second like the game was all over and Hasseltine called time out to stop the rally.

The game was far from over however and when Prentice left the game on fouls, Franzoni added another

Club Will Compete For National Title

Ranked Above Eleven Other Colleges Entered in Competition.

TECHNOLOGY TAKES HONORABLE MENTION

Annual Contest Shows Much Improved Musical Technique.

Competing with eleven clubs from all parts of New England the Middlebury College Glee Club took first laurels at the second annual New England College Glee Club Contest in Symphony Hall, Boston, Thursday evening. As winner of the cup Middlebury is ranked in musical lines above colleges and universities many times its size. The holder of the title for last year was Wesleyan, and from the fact that their club is considered better than last year, a small idea of the competition at Symphony Hall may be gained. Massachusetts Institute of Technology won honorable mention.

According to the rules of the contest each club sang a selection of its own choice, the assigned prize song, "The Lotus Flower," by Schumann, and one of its own college songs. Middlebury presented "Lo! How a Rose Ere Blooming," by Praetorius, as its selected song, and "Gamaliel Painter's Cane" as the college song. The three selections were led by Alton R. Huntington '27.

As champion of New England the Middlebury Club will go to New York on March twelfth where it will take part in the national contest, which is given under the auspices of the Intercollegiate Music Council. Wesleyan was also winner of this contest last year.

In making the awards George Story Smith, music critic and a member of the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music explained that it was the unanimous sentiment of the judges that this year's contest showed a better quality in the selection of the music presented and a marked improvement in the standard of the technique with which the various selections were sung.

The program was divided into three sections. Each of the twelve contesting colleges had its own choice of song in the first group. In the second group all the colleges sang their own interpretation of the prize song which, for this year, was "The Lotus Flower," by R. Schumann.

It is admitted by the judges as well as by critics that the prize song was a most difficult one. The task of selecting the winner was not an easy one, but the verdict was nevertheless popular. There were 150 possible points for the prize song, 90 for the choice, and 60 for the college song. Middlebury's total of points was 278.6.

Those who entered the competition were: Boston College, Amherst, Brown, Bowdoin, Boston University, Technology, Middlebury, Rhode Island State, Clark, Wesleyan, Tufts and Holy Cross.

Dr. J. J. Gibbons was chairman of the committee on arrangements. The judges were: Alfredo Casella, new leader of the Pops; Warren Story Smith and R. Burlingame Hill, professor of music at Harvard.

Each college club's individual choice and college song was rendered as follows: Amherst, "Shadow March" and "Lord Jeffrey Amherst"; Boston College, "Sunset" and "Hail, Alma

CLEMENT ELECTED SENIOR WEEK HEAD

Foster R. Clement, Jr., of Burlingtn, Vt., was elected Chairman of Senior Week at a meeting of the Senior class held yesterday afternoon in Old Chapel. At the same meeting Joseph L. Finnegan of Worcester, Mass., was elected Chairman of Senior Invitations, and Howard C. Seymour was elected Chairman of the Men's Cane committee in place of Mr. Clement who had been previously elected to the office.

Mr. Clement has been very active in campus activities during his four years in college. Last year he was Chairman of Junior Week which attained an unusual succes. He has been Business Manager and Advertising Manager of the Blue Baboon and is at present Advisory Editor on the same publication. He has been for two years a member of the Cross Country Squad and was Advertising Manager of the 1927 Kaledioscope, the Junior Annual. Mr. Clement is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and of Phi Pi Epsilon the honorary journalistic fraternity.

Mr. Finnegan is a member of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity and Mr. Seymour of Kappa Dleta Rho.

SIMMONS REELECTED HOCKEY CAPTAIN

Undefeated Team to Lose But One Man Through Graduation.

By PAUL WOLFSKEHL

Seven letter men, members of Middlebury's undefeated hockey team this season met for a brief second after chapel last Saturday and unanimously reelected Carleton Simmons captain for next year. It was a fine tribute to Simmons, who despite an injury to his leg, which threatened to keep him out of the season led his team to six victories and nary a defeat.

The big Blue team turned in victories over Hamilton, Providence, Vermont, Norwich and M. A. C. winning the state championship in rather easy style. Weather prevented scheduled games against Union, Williams

DEPARTMENTAL JEALOUSY.

Occasionally in the classrooms there creep out disquieting indicattions of the existence of petty jealousies on the part of some professors between the separate departments of learning in the college. This is an attitude which if allowed to present itself before the students too often is sure to be most unfortunate in its effect upon the trend of student opinion regarding the solidarity and worth of the administration.

It is of course only natural that a professor intensely interested in his own field should feel that his work is of great importance. He would not be a good teacher did he feel otherwise. But carried a little further this same commendable line of thought sometimes develops into the unfortunate attitude that makes one regard his own department as the most valuable for any and all students, and sometimes makes one consider that his department is the only one of any real value at all.

This results in decided harm when an instructor or professor allows himself to drop disparaging remarks, even though incidentally or in a semi-humorous fashion, concerning the value of another department' course, or professor. Such a remark will not enhance his own personality in the estimation of the students who attend his class. A garbled account of it often works back to the maligned department. And the thoughtless statement gives new inspiration to the element which is always seeking to find flaws in the college.

Not that all courses, departments and professors are of equal worth. They are not. In fact they vary in all degrees of value down to minus quantities, and the students are among the most caustic judges in regard to them. But it is scarcely professional etiquette for professors to assist in the disparagement. Such action on their part, though it may be thoughtless, assists materially and unnecessarily in destroying student respect for, and loyalty to, the college.

FROSH RULES VS. INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS.

Besides the fallacy that lies in considering Frosh Rules as effective in instilling true college spirit, there is another and more fundamental ground upon which they are open to criticism. Is there really any right, or reason, other than the one of might (which does not exist at Middlebury), by virtue of which Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors, merely as such, are qualified to dictate to the members of the entering class in regard to matters touching personal conduct? Why has not a first year man if he so desires got just as much right to make a fool of himself individually and unmolested as has a member of any other class in college?

When one gets down to the essential facts it would seem that all students, irrespective of classes, are theoretically here upon the same basis. All come to college alike, and on like terms, to acquire an education. The names, Senior, Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman are essentially only convenient terms employed to designate length of individual attendance at the college and presumed degree of scholastic advancement achieved. They do not imply that a Senior, or a Sophomore, or a Junior, or the members of those classes as a whole, are by that name set "ipso facto" above and apart from the rest of the student body. Nor do the names imply that the members, collectively or individually, are endowed with any peculiar ability qualifying them to act as guardians of the entering men. Were such a presumption to be drawn then why logically should not the same distinctions be made between all four years that are now attempted between the first and second?

As evidence of the truth of this basic theory of equality of right all undergraduates are required to pay an equal sum for tuition upon entering, and differences in other costs are based not on class gradings but upon individual expenses. Freshmen are not penalized for existing, nor are other classes rewarded for condescending to bestow their presence on the institution.

All are likewise equally amenable to the rules and regulations of the college. If an individual comes before the dean the question which decides the severity of the penalty is not, "Is the man a freshman or a Sophomore?", but "What rule did he, John Jones, break?"

The spirit of a college is a different thing from the spirit of a preparatory school, and its essence is, or should be, individuality. The earlier environment is to train youth. The purpose of the latter is to make men of youths. This broader purpose inherently implies the instilling of individual initiative, self-reliance, and control. The inculcation of those traits is incompatible with organized artificial mass compulsion. Such characteristics are acquired only by the trial and error method of solution as made between individual and individual or between individual and basic (not artificial) rules of society.

It is sometimes urged that the upper classes have a "duty" toward the entering men. In a sense they have, but as we shall try to point out later there is quite often a misconception as to what constitutes that duty. As a general thing most Sophomores are too prone to mistake mere pleasure for duty in disguise.

At all events to return to the original premise. Freshmen come here on equal terms to enjoy the same privileges and share the same responsibilities (neither more or less) that all other students do. They pay the same coin as all the others. Why should they not like all the others, have the same right to conduct themselves as they think best, so long as they comply with the rules of the college authorities?

PIN PRICKS.

From time to time the Campus is unofficially requested to use its editorial column in furtherance of various complaints against the administration which have absolutely no reason behind them but a desire to stir up needless additional dissatisfaction between the administration and the student body.

We refuse to do this. Not because we are in awe of the administration, but because that sort of thing is petty. It is always ill advised. And in the end it is destructive to the furtherance of such well grounded complaints as the Campus may feel in duty bound to uphold.

Our editorials this year have proven we think that the Campus is not afraid to criticise the administration when it feels that there is cause. But when we have done so it was not for the purpose of destroying, but to effect if possible an increase of understanding between administration and students. This has not always been the result, but it has been the aim.

There is always enough dissatisfaction prevalent on the campus, justifiable and otherwise, so that there is no need of unnecessary augmentation.

Well Known Writer to Speak.

William Hazlett Upson, well known writer, whose stories have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and Collier's Weekly, has been secured as one of the speakers in the Vocational Lecture Series and will speak on "Short Story Writing" at a date to be arranged in the latter part of April.

Mrs. Upson is well known to Middlebury people as Marjory Wright of the Class of 1915. Mr. and Mrs. Upson have recently purchased a summer place near the Bread Loaf Inn and are expecting to begin rebuilding the house as soon as weather permits, in the spring. They expect to make Bread Loaf their permanent address.

Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince, director of the Prince School of Education for Store Service will speak at the next Women's Vocational Guidance lecture in Pearsons' Social Hall on Friday evening at 7:15. All women interested are invited to attend, and to make appointments for private interviews on Saturday morning. Such appointments can be made at the Dean's office.

Senior Women Maintain Lead in Basketball

The senior women maintained their lead in inter-class basketball Wednesday night, February 23, when they defeated the sophomores, their closest rivals, in a fairly even battle, ending with the final score of 34-25. The game was fast and close throughout, with Derrick and Ohart doing some excellent passing for the seniors, and Southall contributing much to the victory. The sophomores had hard luck in their shooting, missing many baskets, but with Marchiano, Tudhope, and Sibley, they gave the seniors strong opposition.

The junior-freshman game the same night was as the score shows altogether one-sided, with the freshman trimming the juniors to the tune of 57-11. The game, which was neither fast nor close, showed the juniors up rather badly. The freshmen, however, have developed quite an effective team with Kocher, Lewis, Batchelder, and Maxfield all playing good basketball.

The sophomores defeated the freshmen in a fast game of basketball Tuesday evening at the gym. The final score was 44 to 24. The freshmen team as a whole played much better than the sophomores. The forwards worked the triangle play very well. Bachelder was the star of the game, with a total of 16 points to her credit. Burnham and Maxfield were wide awake on the defense and they made their opponents step lively. The sophomore forwards played a loose, spectacular game the first half, and lost many points by their wild shots. Their pass work was poor until the third period when they tightened up and made five baskets in the last two minutes of play.

The Lamplighter

GOOD old Leerie, the lamplighter, worked cheerfully to make the streets bright. And the lamps sputtered a friendly glow into the darkness.

The citizens of the country have taken Leerie's job. They are the lamplighters of today, and they spend 3½ cents of each tax dollar that their streets may be bright.

Good street lighting means more flourishing business sections, safe traffic, convenience, and protection.

Leerie, the faithful, has gone—but streets still need lighting. And in whatever communities college men and women elect to live, they should take a lively interest in civic improvements—including street lighting.

G-E products help light the world, haul its people and goods, turn the wheels of industry, and lessen labor in the home. Whether on MAZDA lamps, or on large or tiny motors, or on the multitude of other means of electrical service, you will find the G-E monogram wherever you go.

TERTIUS VAN DYKE SPEAKS AT VESPERS

Goal of Life Gained By Concentration and Self-Control.

Rev. Tertius Van Dyke of Washington, Connecticut, addressed the student body at Vespers Sunday afternoon using as his text, Corinthians 9:25, "And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible."

Rev. Van Dyke spoke of the Corinthian games as being great assemblages of people who tried their skill in various competitive sports: chariot and horse races, wrestling matches, and even musical contests. He said, "The Greeks were much interested in art, and when they entered these contests they took vows to violate no regulations. They applied the terms of concentration and self-control to their games, but not to their lives. Paul was considerably interested in the two elements of concentration and self-control, and he deplored the sad fact that although the contestants of those sports underwent all the hard training, these same men made no effort to obtain an incorruptible crown.

Why do we not apply these elements for the purposes of life; why not be serious and self-sacrificing to gain the end of life with honor? Try to see the goal first and then aim for it in all things. We must never be cowardly and lose our way, but if such a thing does happen, we should patiently think out a solution. Rev. Van Dyke quoted William Ossler's "Live our life in dike tight compartments," and gave as an example the parable of the Talents, stressing that God should approve of the use we have made of our talents in the world to achieve the goal of life.

"We must use self-control in all things; by that I mean 'inside power.' The virtue in life is to sacrifice this good to attain an ultimate good. Legislation in a nation is necessary to insure justice and safety for the inhabitants; but we must use self-control even in that, for one cannot enforce law if he is not master of himself."

In conclusion Rev. Van Dyke said, "There is something in Life beyond self-respect; it is the doing of God's will for each particular man; that is why we turn people toward Him. The greatest possible reward at the end of anyone's life is knowing that through concentration and self-control he has perfectly done the will of God, and the call for us is to likewise."

and Amherst but comparative scores would indicate that had these games been played the team would still have been undefeated. In all the new rink and the fine team aroused new interest in hockey, interest that will soon raise hockey to a higher plane than it has ever enjoyed at Middlebury.

Of this year's team Simmons loses but one man through graduation. Finnegan this year's goalie who warded the puck off in rather efficient style will receive a diploma but the rest of the team will be here at least one more year. This means that Whittemore, Kelley, Hill, Bossert, Gruggel and Captain Simmons will be available next year. However they will not find their positions cinched for a number of this year's ineligibles and reserves will probably carry sticks again next year. Jason, Burrows, MacLeod and Huntington should put a keen edge on the competition. For goal Melby, who broke into two games this year and Douglas, veteran of two years will probably fight it out for the position in front of the cage.

"A Doll's House," Ibsen's well known three-act drama, was presented by the Woman's Club in the Town Hall last Friday evening. The cast for this unusually fine amateur production of "A Doll's House" was directed by Prof. Wm. Northrop Morse.

point. It was a great moment for some one and Palmer taking the ball single handed quickly brought the score to 20-19 with three of the prettiest shots of the game. It was a tense moment but it was the closest that Middlebury was to come for from then on the only scoring that was done was by Vermont.

Price dropped a foul and Estabrook gave Vermont two more points with a basket. Marvin added two more and Post completed the scoring with a long shot. The final whistle saw the upstaters still clinging to an eight point margin and with it the state title.

MIDDLEBURY LOSES TO SPRINGFIELD

With a squad that permitted the use of two complete and equally fast teams, Springfield out-played and outpointed Middlebury 27 to 16 Saturday evening in McCullough gymnasium. The visitors had an exceptionally strong defense; Middlebury pierced the wall of five men only at rare intervals, and was forced for the most part to trust to long range attempts at points.

On offense, too, Springfield easily had the edge. All five men acted as one in a flashing, smoothly working system of passing that often caught Middlebury unprepared. And even with defense formation ready, the Panther was unable at times to stand off the Red and White running attack.

Springfield took a generous lead with the first five minutes of play; the first half ended in a 13 to 6 score favoring the guests of the evening. But in the middle of the second half Middlebury came forward with a rush, and a basket by Johnson brought the score at last to 16 to 14, two points behind the victors. At this juncture in the game Springfield called a halt, substituted three freshmen, threw in more within another three minutes, and simply by means of superior numbers of rested players, galloped away from the Blue and White. A deluge of points by the Red closed the contest. Franzoni threw Middlebury's last basket a minute before the final whistle.

TUFTS WINS IN FORENSIC CONTEST

Decision Unanimous For Negative Side of Debt Question.

Middlebury again lost to visiting debaters last Wednesday evening when the judges gave a unanimous decision in favor of the Tufts College men who upheld the negative of the question: "Resolved: That the United States should cancel the loans made to its associates during the World War." The negative adherents spoke consistently well and were especially strong in rebuttal.

The arguments of the affirmative were based largely on the facts that: "First, it is our duty to cancel the debts and second, that it is to our economic interest to do so. The money which we lent Europe was merely a substitute for military power which we did not furnish until late in 1918. The countries of Europe are growing to hate us more and more and unless we cancel the debts this attitude will be disastrous to us in the end. It is practically impossible for Europe to pay these debts. They have not enough gold and if they repay in goods our export trade will be ruined and our home industries injured. Further inflation will result in Europe if they are compelled to pay. Finally, if they should pay they will become the economic monarchs of the world." The speakers for the affirmative were H. Hamilton Jones, '27; Charles O. Adams, '27; and Henry V. Brooks, '28; alternate, Scott A. Babcock, '27. Prof. Wm. N. Morse coached the Middlebury team.

The negative said in substance, "Europe can pay her debts as is proven by the fact that she already has made some payments. The countries which most object to paying their debt are those who made the biggest territorial and industrial gains from the war. The economic conditions in Europe have steadily improved since the war. The foreign criticisms against United States have political rather than popular sources. Repayment in imports will help rather than hurt us by lowering the cost of living. Imports necessary for debt settlement involve only a small fraction of our total import trade and less than one-fourth of our total income so that there will be no economical crisis. Europe wastes annually enough money on military preparation to repay the war debt. Cancellation would establish a bad precedent and would simply amount to a transfer of obligation from the foreign countries to the American people.

The speakers for the negative were: Baker Adams, Hugh F. McKenna, and James E. Nickerson; alternate, Raymond J. Fay. The decision was by the judges who were: Judge Leonard F. Wing of Rutland, Prof. Frederick B. Tupper of Burlington, and Mr. E. B. Cornwall of Middlebury. The program opened with a song, "Salutation," by Gains, sung by the Women's Glee Club. President Paul D. Moody, presided.

Among the instrumental features were selections by the M. I. T. quintet of saxophonists and violin selections by Miss Elinor Whittemore. At the conclusion of the concert the combined glee clubs sang the Dutch prayer of thanksgiving and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Two concerts were also given during the week-end, one at Ludlow, Vermont on Wednesday night where the club was given a most enthusiastic reception. Encores were called on almost every number.

Friday night the Club was entertained by the Parent-Teachers' Association at Wakefield, Mass. Here the audience was even more appreciative. One especially well received number was the singing of the local High School alma mater.

From WNAC Thursday afternoon a short program was broadcasted consisting of selections from the regular program, a vocal solo by Bradford Newcomb, and a violin solo by James Thomson.

When the plutarchs start plutarching

AT THE night sessions, when class philosophers vie with class Merry Andrews in deciding the heavy problems of the world—or burlesquing them — notice the royal guest, Prince Albert. Chiming in with the spirit of the occasion. Filling the air with the finest tobacco-aroma ever.

Do you smoke Prince Albert? It will bring you more pleasure and satisfaction than you ever thought a pipe could give. The instant you throw back the hinged lid and release that wonderful P. A. fragrance, you suspect you are in for some grand smoke-sessions.

The very first pipe-load confirms your suspicions. Cool as a gate-tender. Sweet as the week-end reprieve. Mild as the coffee in Commons—mild, yet with a full body that satisfies your smoke-taste completely. Get yourself a tidy red tin this very day.

PRINCE ALBERT
—no other tobacco is like it!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.
